Suddenly they were flanked by sharpshooters: "we were obliged to leave the Ground-but not sooner did we do it untill we got the Order." The writer was shot in the left arm: "the blood run all over me. I was sweting and the Powder of handling the Cartridge and smoke blaked my face." He had to suffer for two days and nights. "No one to see to me. I could get nothing to eat. I layed in the Woods without a Blanket to lay on, at last I was fetched to a house ..." The writer is now in a "splendit Hospital-lighted with Gas."

McClellan Hospital, Nicetown, (Pa.). The writer regrets that the addressee has been ill. Comments on the war situation. Thinks Lee's army would "surely demoralized and burned to ashes under the fire of the Fortifications around Washington ..." if he tried to take that city. (Second page of letter headed "My dear friend") The writer is troubled and apologizes because his last letter may have offended the addressee. He wrote to Gov. John A. Andrew asking him for a furlough. Dr. Brown has promised an answer next week. The writer's wound is healed, but he still has pain occasionally.

McClellan Hospital, Nicetown near Philadelphia. The writer is glad that the addressee is at home again, because "everything goes the wrong way" when she is not there. The writer would have been successful (in obtaining his furlough?) if she had taken care of his affairs. "Now I do not know if I shall be able to see Mrs. Weston all my friends & Almira & little Anna ... Afflictedness is my pastime now." Details the long red tape involved in procuring a furlough. Dr. Brown (of the hospital) does not favor the writer and takes no interest in the matter. The writer appealed to Governor Andrew, who wrote to the surgeon in charge of the hospital, "who gave the letter I believe to Dr. [redacted] n," who did not like it. Pet- has been drafted. The writer wishes he would join the Mass. Battery. The writer does not believe the war will last long.

Worcester (Mass.). Concerns contributions desired for the Liberty Bell. "But my poetry, as you rashly call it, has all turned into prose for the last few years; a good exchange for all, I think." However, the writer encloses verses found "among the scattered waifs of the past." Also sends a sermon on the text "Am I my Brother's Keeper." Further the writer suggests applying for contributions to his friend W.H.Hurlbut of Cambridge and the Rev. David A.Wasson of Groveland, "one of the noblest persons whom I know..."

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

Worcester, (Mass.). The writer reports on some legal aspects of the Anthony Burns case. Doubts that a Massachusetts jury will convict Theodore Parker. Tells about Asa O. Butman, a police officer, who was driven out of Worcester by a mob for attempting to investigate the Burns case. Refers to the Woman's Rights movement. Says he is going to be tried in a Federal court. "The specialité to which I would like to devote myself for a year or two, had I time would be a History of Woman in Italy, -or modestly, -a Literary History of Italian Women ... Mrs. S. J. Hale in her bulky book has drawn on the Italian sources & told more about them than any one else ..." Tells about his source material. Has been lecturing in Bangor. Says that T. To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

Newburyport, Mass.: Having seen the addressee's advertisement of the Fair and the Liberty Bell, the writer offers for use certain verses of his "that were last year too late." Requests that if the verses are printed, his present place of residence may be appended "to identify them the more." Also asks that the printers may leave his capital letters as they are in the manuscript, "which printers are always loth to do." The writer has also proposed to his friend Samuel Johnson of Salem to contribute to the Liberty Bell, "he being deeply interested in the cause." The writer hopes to visit Boston at the time of the Anti-Slavery Fair, and expresses his own "deeply rooted" interest and sympathy with the addressee's "portion of the Anti-Slavery body." Explains that "his own
